

e TRIO and GEAR UP Programs' TRIO Day celebration was a major success! anks to everyone who assisted with the TRIO/GEAR UP DAY celebration. Each of the programs made it possible to showcase their signicance, share the importance of students, and thank the community and university personnel.

At the event, the accomplishments of former participants were recognized. e honorees came from limited income families, were rst generation, had a disability, were a returning adult, in foster care, or in the military. Each of the programs are proud of the honorees and what they have accomplished. e alumni were phenomenal.

Remarks from the mayor, WSU provost, and vice president for Diversity and Community Engagement were signicant and demonstrated the commitment that each has for the programs.

A major "thank you" to each of the Building Bridges honorees for their excellent remarks about their successes and accomplishments and for sharing what the programs meant to their success. Each honoree helped the TRIO/GEAR UP statofeel great about what they dole programs are happy the honorees graduated from the programs, went on to college, accomplished a successful career. Special acknowledgement was given to a former GEAR UP participant who is currently on statofer her participation and her current contributions. Congratulations went to the students and participants from each program who received the Student Recognition Awards. Each received a medallion for their academic contributions and successes. e Advocacy Award went to the director of Disability Services. Contemp-Oh! Band provided entertainment and have been signicant contributors to the TRIO Day celebration. A very special "thank you" for their continued support.

e TRIO and GEAR UP Programs are thrilled to take the opportunity each year to share their successes, recognize participants, thank the community, and praise the university for their support. ese programs are the life blood for many of the individuals who make decisions about college and their lives.

Planning is already underway for the 2020 TRIO and GEAR UP celebration with the hope that the campus and